BURGLARS AT WORK IN THE NORTHWESTERN Section of the City.—Although small of stature and young in years they were proceedng in a manner to profit by experience and become expert burglars, but they were 'nipped in the bud," and the unsuccessful at-empt to pillage Mrs. J. A. S. Swan's residence, to. 1415 I street, may cut short their bur-arious career. Mrs. Swan's residence is protected during her absence for the summer by the Mutual Dis-trict Messenger Company's system of wires and is connected with the company's office. It was 10:55 exactly yesterday morning when the alarm was sounded in their office and a few minutes afterward Special Officer Addison was in rear of the house and when the wrecked door was seen Mr. Addison called for assist-ance. Special Officers Malloy and Dorsey, all imployes of the Mutual District Messenger ompany, promptly responded.

They entered the house, which is a very large one, handsomely furnished; searching each floor from the basement up they were un-successful in their search until the top floor was reached. On this floor, from under a bed, a small negro boy was hauled out, and in

Though these housebreakers are sad exmuscular, desperate men these employes were called to face, and it was a suitable test of the efficiency of the burglar alarm system and the reliability of the employes to accommo-date themselves to danger.

AN OLD MAN PATALLY BURNED. aron Jones Dies From Injuries Re

This morning shortly after midnight a disas trous fire occurred in McCarthy's alley near 18th and Estreets which caused the destruction of three dwellings and the loss of one life. The houses that were destroyed belonged to Aaron Jones, Philip Smith and Benjamin Fleet, all colored, and Jones was the one whose life was lost during the fire and excitement.

Nearly all the houses in the alley were frame families. It was in Aaron Jones' house that subject was "Our Course of Study." A numthe fire started, but as he was asleep at the time | ber of invitations had been sent out in the name he probably could not tell how it originated if of the board of trustees, so that the board room he were alive. The bright blaze and the crack-ing of the burning timbers attracted the attenhe were airee. The bright blaze and the crack-ing of the burning timbers attracted the atten-tion of persons outside the house first and be-fore those in the burning building could be aroused a large crowd had assembled. There is a stable near the houses and the horses were all rescued as soon as possible. Those living in other houses in the alley had been awakened by the noise and in their efforts to save their fur-niture and other effects they came near forgotting all about old man Jones.

CRAWLING FROM A BACK WINDOW. The old man, however, had been awakened by the intense heat and was making every effort to save both himself and his property when he was noticed crawling out the second-story back window to the shed. Two able-bodied colored women went to his assistance and lowered him to the ground, but he was very weak from having inhaled so much smoke, and almost fell to the ground. He was carried to the house of his daughter, just around the corner, and was made as comfortable as pos-

In the meanwhile the excitement at the scene of the fire had not subsided. Men, women and children had gathered in the alley and on and children had gathered in the alley and on the vacant lots and were watching the fire, when they saw the many occupants of the burning houses come out of doors and windows, both on the first and second floors. Some were in their night clothes, some were half dressed and others were nearly naked.

The fire department had responded, but those living in the alley established a small-sized de-partment of their own, and several hundred buckets of water were thrown against the houses to prevent the escaping sparks from causing further trouble.

ausing further trouble. DEATH OF THE OLD MAN.

Poor old man Jones was very sick, but the excitement was so great that no one thought about sending for a doctor until it was too

When it became evident that his death wa only a question of a few minutes, the residents of the neighborhood began to pour into the house of the old man's daughter and remained notise of the old man's daughter and remained until all was over.

Those who escaped from their houses sought refuge in the homes of their neighbors, where they could see from the windows their own homes going to the ground despite the large streams of water that were being played upon When the firemen had succeeded in extin guishing the flames, they found that many of the houses in the alley had been vacated, and furniture was piled up higher than what was left of the three houses that were destroyed. A FIRE ON TWENTIETH STREET. Shortly before this fire occurred the firemen were called to a house in the rear of No. 1002 20th street, where a colored man named John

Tucker kept a confectionery store. John and his wife lived in the house and they were asleep on the second floor when Policeman O'Brien discovered the flames and turned in Tucker and his wife were forced to leave the house by getting out of the second story window. The only injury sustained was a sprained ankle received by Mrs. Tucker.

When the officer discovered the fire the flames had gained considerable headway, and fearing the fire would spread to other houses, the officer tried to arouse the inmates of these houses, which he did after much difficulty, and two boys in one house had to be carried out to save them from the flames. Besides the house in which Tucker lived two other houses, were burned. The damage amounted to about $1,500. Dr. Reyburn owns the property.

The jury retired at noon and discussed the case fully, and at the hour of adjournment the general belief was that they had agreed to disagree. At a few minutes of 9 lournment the general belief was that they had agreed to disagree. At a few minutes of 9 it was announced that they had agreed and word was sent to Judge Bradley. In a short time the defendant with his counsel, Messrs. C. M. Smith and Lyons, appeared and were followed by others, and on the arrival of the judge the verdict as above was announced. He thanked the jurors individually and was congratulated by a number of persons.

A GRATIFYING IMPROVEMENT. Marked Falling Off in the Number of Death Here Last Week.

Health Officer Townshend in his report for the week ending last Saturday says: "The mortality returns this week present marked and gratifying falling off in the number of deaths throughout the District; the number being only 90 as compared with 129 for each of the two preceding weeks. "The fatalities from acute lung diseases have decreased from 60 in the last week of April to 34 in the first week of May, to 23 last week and to only 15 this week.

"The number of deaths from brain, heart and kidney diseases in this and former weeks, many of which have evidently been superinduced by the epidemical catarrhal influenza, should serve as a caution to everyone, especially persons of advanced age, to guard against all exposure to dampness and sudden change all exposure to dampiess and sudden change of temperature."

The report shows a total of 90 deaths, an equal number of white and colored. Death rate per 1,000 per annum, white, 13.8; colored, 29.2; total population 18.7. Thirty were under five years old, 16 under one year, and eighteen

OUR COURSE OF STUDY. dent Powell Delivers an In ing Talk Upon the Subject

NEW METHODS OF TEACHING IN THE PUBLI SCHOOLS OF THE DISTRICT-THE CHILD MADE TO SEE THE RELATIONS OF THINGS IN EVERY BRANCH-HEALTH OF THE PUPILS. Mr. W. B. Powell, superintendent of the pub lic schools, delivered an informal address last evening at the Franklin building that would have been of interest to every man and woma hanties and they were occupied by colored in the District who has a child in school. His

> Mr. Powell began his address by saying that one of the school trustees had found him a few days ago in a teachers' meeting explaining to them what he wished done in a certain line of work. That trustee had suggested that he re-peat the talk to the board in order that they might more fully understand just what the teachers are trying to do. PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND THEIR METHODS.

There are in this city about 37,000 school children, more than a sixth of the entire poplation, and as in the case of most of them the public school is the most important element in public school is the most important element in their social development, too much attention cannot be given to the matter of public schools and their methods. Mr. Powell said that he believed the school is a growth and develops along the lines desired by the community. If the authorities do not give good enough schools the people will demand it as their right, and if the trustees go too high the people will pull them down. In Washington, if there is a good school, the people are to be credited for it, and if the schools are not creditable it is the fault of the people. haveing the fact that it takes if the schools are not creditable it is the fault of the people, barring the fact that it takes several years for a school to be made as people would have it. Education has advanced so far and is so universal that schools do not measure their worth by what the pupils know, but by the amount of power they have instilled into the children's brain to learn and to do. Every test given a child should be as to his power to do, and not as to the quantity of facts he may have in his mind, and this, Mr. Powell said, was the principle he had been insisting upon with his teachers during the six years that he had been connected with the schools of Washington.

THE PRIMARY SCHOOL. The primary schools are working along lines of original and primary knowledge. Children are taught to see things properly, to speak and to hear and to taste properly. Mistakes are made, it is true, but it would be strange if they

By means of a blackboard and diagram Superintendent Powell illustrated the methods and principles of elementary instruction in reading. A small boy knows a great deal, but it is by sound symbols, and it is the duty of the elementary teacher to teach him to represent what he knows in an oral form grammatically correct and then in written symbols. Reading is the formulation of what the child already knows and it is in the proper form, and the child is but learning the written symbols that represent the spoken symbols of what is already in his mind. Soon he is led into the field of numbers and he learns them by handling numbers of things, and all the time he is learning to use better English. He is fond of making up simple problems himself, only instead of being allowed to say, "I had three apples and I gave my sister one," he is taught to say, "Having given my sister an apple I still had three left." Not all the teachers use this system thoroughly, but the best of them do.

In the same way children are taught about plants as much as of numbers by having plants placed in their hands, which they are taught to see properly and to understand. Children are made to describe accurately what they see and then to write down what they have said and they are made to read what the best writers have said on kindred subjects. best writers have said on kindred subjects. When they write about a leaf they are then to read what able men have written about leaves. Instead of being taught their letters and to read stuff they know nothing about they are

THE HEALTH OF PUPILS. In closing his remarks Mr. Powell said he wished to speak a little upon the matter of the health of the pupils. The school houses that buildings. Mr. George F. T. Cook, superintendent of the colored public schools, was to have been present to speak on the same line, but he was prevented by illness.

Signs of the Last Days.

Jesus Christ and found in Matthew 24. The speaker called particular attention to the dark day of May 19, 1780, and the falling of the stars, occurring November 13, 1833, two incidents which were prophesied accurately.

Eider Washburn read from religious and profane history and from Webster's dictionary, page 1604, showing that these phenomena were unaccountable. He claimed that the masses were treating the nearness of the second advent of Christ with that indifference and disbelief which marked the age in which Noah warned the world of the impending flood. The course of lectures will continue for several weeks at the tent.
